DAK:

>
It's your prince this war destroyed first,

>
Then he came to destroy our world,

>
And I've found you,

>
So I've found you.

>

>
ALDREA:

>
In a wind that's blowing too fast,

>
In an air that won't let us last,

>
I will hold you,

>
I will hold you.

>

>
DAK: You know what waits for you like this, right?

>
ALDREA: I want to stay with you, come what might.

>
DAK: If love exists even now,

>
I can see, somehow,

>

>
A hope

>
That it will be diff'rent someday,

>
A crazy hope...

>
ALDREA: A useless hope.

>
BOTH: A hope

>
That says we and our love just may

>
Help make a better world someday,

>
So, don't resign,

>
Keep up the fight,
>
So this will be the last time we were hurt.
>

>
DAK:
>
Our world wasn't always like this,
>
I still remember joy and peace,
>
I will tell you...
>
ALDREA: If it were true!
>

>
DAK:
>
It was, and it will be, you must know!
>
I don't think we'll live to see it, though.
>
BOTH: But I'm sure our children will,
>
For I can feel, still,
>

>
A hope
>
That it will be diff'rent someday,
>
A crazy hope,
>
A useless hope,
>
A hope
>
That says we and our love just may
>
Help make a better world someway
>
So, don't resign,
>
Keep up the fight,
>
So this will be the last time we were hurt.
>

>
ALDREA: Wars were all I've ever shown.
>
DAK: Wars that end the pain we've known.
>
BOTH: They were not fought in vain,
>
They helped it go on,
>

>
Our hope --
>
-- That it will be better someday,
>
So, don't resign,
>
Keep up the fight,
>
So this will be the last time we were hurt!
